

Spanish-English Matrimonial Alliances

Alfonso's Approaching Wedding Leads to Reflection on Changes Worked by Passage of Time—A Glance Backward.

Time was when it would have created the greatest furor for a Catholic ruler to ask for queen a Protestant princess. To-day the world is broad-minded, or indifferent—as one may look at it—and does not bother. To be sure, when the young Spanish monarch made known his preference for Ena of Battenberg, there was enough of the conservative element left in conservative Spain to hold out opposition; but this was easily put aside, and behold the Spanish cortes promptly, generously and gracefully sanctioned the betrothal of their king to the English princess, and granted their future queen the liberal allowance of $50,000 a year. Over in England there is hardly a whisper of dissent to the marriage, on the contrary kindly interest in the young princess so soon to leave her old home for a new home in distant Madrid.

A very interesting article in the New York Herald, by a writer who lived some time in Spain, reminds us that "Ena can say with Henry IV., 'A crown is well worth a few masses.'" This is one view to take of the readiness with which the princess has changed her faith. There are others; one, that she all her life has been more or less under Catholic influence, being much in the company of her god-mother, ex-Empress Eugenie; another, that her marriage with Alfonso is a true love match, that it is a joy to her to accept at the advanced age of 23; this escape by reason of the rapid changes in her country's foreign relations, and because she was unwilling to wed a Protestant. When she did marry, she married a man 11 years her junior and chose for consort Philip of Spain; as it turned out, a most unhappy choice, one that added little to any harmony between the two nations. Proposal of such a marriage aroused the people, it was most unpopular; so bitter was the sentiment that an open rebellion broke out to depose Mary and put Elizabeth in her place. After the marriage Philip continued extremely unpopular with the English, and not only did he weaken his wife's hold on the people but he repaid her adoration by cruel coldness and neglect. She was unwearied in her efforts to please Philip, even went so far as to join in a war against France which resulted in the loss to the English of Calais. Mary Tudor's life was a very unhappy one; in her childhood in danger, in her girlhood much beset, in her wifehood most forlorn. Years after Mary's death Philip made war against his wife's land, sent the famed Spanish Armada against England.

An attempted royal alliance it may be in place to chronicle here. In the days of James I. (1603-25) negotiations were carried on for the marriage of James' son Charles with a Spanish Infanta. When one reads that the ne-

CATALONIA SHEEPSKINS.

Finest in Spain, from Which Country Vast Quantities Are Shipped Abroad.

Barcelona is an important market for the supply of sheepskins. The finest skins are collected in the province of Catalonia. Not only are they of good quality, but they are, as a rule, more carefully flayed and stacked than those obtained in other parts of Spain. Valencia sheepskins are also of good quality, and are, generally speaking, larger than the others. Next in order of merit after the Catalonian sheepskins may be classed those collected in the district of La Mancha, in New Castle, and, lastly, those shipped from Murcia, which are smaller and often crumpled and badly flayed.

Owing to the political situation in Russia, which, along with Spain and Italy, supplies very large quantities of sheepskins, exports from that country have been greatly interfered with, and foreign buyers have turned their attention more to Spain than they have hitherto, with the natural result that prices have been forced up. German dealers have recently been through Spain buying up all available supplies.

Barcelona alone produces from 400,000 to 500,000 skins annually. Dealers and exporters purchase the skins from the meat contractors, the contracts being made either for a whole year or only six months, in which latter case the skins command a higher price if the purchase be made for six months with the wool on.

The annual contracts are now being made for 1906, the following being the prices that it is thought will be realized: Lambskins, $3.42 to $5.75 per dozen, against $5.62 to $7 last year.

High-Priced Flowers.

The record Easter price for flowers went to a florist on upper Fifth avenue. For an azalea measuring about four feet across the top he received $500. On the bush were both white and pink blossoms, and in that peculiarity was supposed to reside the great worth of the plant.—N. Y. Sun.

THE FUTURE QUEEN OF SPAIN.

the religion of her betrothed. This last the reading public will be forgiven if they are a bit cynical over, the reading public having become accustomed, at each new betrothal of a royal pair, to declaration that this particular one among royal marriages is really a mating of souls, politics not the ruling motive. But let us put even smallest cynicism aside, and hope king and princess are fond of each other in good, romantic fashion, that they live happy ever after.

Several times have England and Spain been called upon to show favor or disfavor to a Spanish-English betrothal. Long, long ago one of the Edwards married a Spaniard, Princess Eleanor of Castile, sister of Alfonso X. of Castile, that Edward whose surname was "Longshanks," and little Edward I. This English king ruled from 1239-67; in 1254 he espoused Eleanor of Castile. Now, when the papers are so full of the approaching ceremonial of the Spanish-English alliance, it may be of interest to think back on the wedding pomp that attended the joining in wedlock of English Edward and Spanish Eleanor. Edward was but a stripling of 16, a youthful bridegroom to be sure, when he journeyed to Spain to claim his bride. He was attended, we are told, by a splendid array of knights, by all the trappings of the days of chivalry; and the wedding was an affair of such magnificence they tell of it to-day in the ancient city of Burgos, once capital city of Castile.

Catherine of Aragon, daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella, married Arthur, prince of Wales, and later was wedded to Henry VIII. Mary Tudor, daughter of Catherine of Aragon and the much-wedded Henry, in 1554 espoused Philip of Spain (later Philip II). Various alliances for Mary were proposed; when but an infant of two years she was affianced to the dauphin, and a few years later to her cousin, Charles V.; still later, an attempt was made to marry her to Francis I. But she escaped matrimony until arriving negotiations, which finally resulted in nothing, were, with some interruptions, pending a period of 12 years one wonders what must have been the state of mind of the principals in the proposed marriage. James, you remember, was called the "wisest fool in Europe." He was a learned man, but weak and pedantic and absurdly politic, neither friend nor foe to anybody. The same year he began negotiations for the marriage of his son to a Spanish princess he entered into an alliance with the Protestant union in Germany and shortly married his daughter to the head of the union. James rebuked parliament as meddling when they sent in a petition against popery and the proposed Spanish marriage, and when parliament passed the great protestation declaring that matters which concerned the king and realm were proper subjects of debate, the king tore the page concerning the protestation from the journal of the commons. But to return to the negotiations for a marriage treaty. The final step in the long halted arrangements was taken when a splendid expedition in charge of the king's favorite, George Villiers, set forth for the Spanish court. Villiers had persuaded Charles to press his suit in person, so we should mention that the prince of Wales was also a member of the expedition. While on the mission Villiers was created duke of Buckingham, but the honors accruing to him then and later were not because of the success of his efforts; either Charles proved a displeasing wooer or the duke of Buckingham was too arrogant to suit the proud Spaniards, at any rate the negotiations for a marriage treaty failed utterly, the mission returned home discomfited. It would seem James I. had arrived by this time at the position, "Marriage or war," for when he heard all hopes were blasted of Charles having for wife the Infanta Maria war was declared on Spain and an alliance made with France. Ere long Charles married a Maria; but it was Henrietta Maria of France.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured."

HOPE FOR THE BALDHEADS

German Professor Says It Is Simple Thing to Renew Growth of Hair.

Prof. Kromeyer, of Germany, who turns bald heads into Paderewskis and Kropotkins for a consideration, hopes to have the honor of treating President Roosevelt's son-in-law on his forthcoming tour of the courts of Europe.

"Prince Nicholas," he says—the professor will not believe his name is Longworth—"Prince Nicholas can have half-like Anabom for the asking—he would be an excellent advertisement for my method, don't you think so?"

Though the professor's claims look fishy, he is not an ordinary fakir by any means. He was a professor of dermatology at the University of Halle before he came to Berlin, and is a well-known specialist of the Finzen light method, on which he has improved in several ways.

The Berlin faculty recognizes 33 cures of bald heads effected by him by legitimate methods, and of the baldhead class under his care so far only 25 per cent. went away like billiard balls after he got through with them. His ultra violet light rays operate directly through the opening of the cooled protective shield upon the bald spots, and are subject to the rays from half a minute to a quarter of an hour at a time.

The reaction is: Reddening of the skin and formation of painful blisters. At the same time the hair roots, seemingly dead, begin to regenerate. After the second light bath one can see them sprout.

The professor introduced a girl of 19 who had lost every bit of hair during a long sickness. The professor gave her head 42 light baths within six months. To-day Gretchen could make a living as one of the Seven Sutherland Sisters. A man "of Prince Nicholas' age" was cured after 27 violet baths, another, somewhat older, after 21. "All depends on the condition the hair roots are in," says the professor.

HOPE TO FIND TREASURE.

English Society Purposes to Search for Baggage and Jewels of King John.

Excitement has been aroused in Lincolnshire, England, by the projected attempt to recover the royal jewels and treasure lost by King John in The Wash when he fled across the marches in 1216. Mr. St. John Hope, assistant secretary of the Society of Antiquarians, asks support for the scheme. He has made a study of the tides ever since the date when King John lost his baggage, and calculates that heavily laden wagons will be found at Sutton Bridge, where there is 23 feet of silt. The Wash having changed its course greatly since 1216.

Apart from its great actual value, the lost treasure would be greatly prized by antiquaries and numismatists.

In its records for 1610 is the entry: "Michael Banks, out of King's Bench Prison. Executed. Did revive again. Was in the vestry three hours and was then carried back and executed again."

OWLS HOOT IN RAGTIME.

Strange Effect of St. Louis Whisky on a Pair of Captive Mouse Killers.

Lured from a happy home in a dead tree near Galesburg, Ill., two big owls were brought by William Schroeder as a present to his friend, H. F. Konevsky, proprietor of a drug store at Nineteenth and Wright streets, reports the St. Louis Globe-Democrat of recent date.

They were placed in a window of the store the other morning, and are considered very fine specimens of what is known among ornithologists as "long-eared" owls. They are much larger than ordinary owls, probably due to the diet of corned mice in their Illinois home.

Soon after being placed in the drug store it became known that when the street was quiet the owls decided to hoot. They hooted up Mr. Konevsky, who was the donor of the birds was really his friend. All through the night they continued in fog-horn cadence.

When he found that he could not sleep to the hoot music, W. J. Pfeffer, who sleeps, or tries to sleep, in the store, attempted to stop the concert by putting a glass of whisky in the cage.

The owls took a couple of drinks, and it was all off then. Instead of their doleful but dignified hoot-hoots, the birds executed ragtime selections which speedily aroused the neighborhood.

Travelling Is Dangerous.

Constant motion jars the kidneys which are kept in place in the body by delicate attachments. This is the reason that travellers, trainmen, street car men, teamsters, and all who drive very much, suffer from disease in some form. Foley's Kidney Cure strengthens the kidneys and cures all forms of kidney and bladder disease. Geo. E. Hausan, locomotive engineer, Lima, O., writes, Constant vibration of the engine caused me a great deal of trouble with my kidneys, and I got no relief until I used Foley's Kidney Cure. Sold by J. H. STRUTTING TAME

Vain Show of the Male Parading His Charms before a Hen.

Toward the end of September ruffed grouse began strutting, a performance similar to that of a peacock. The tall is spread ruff thrown out around the wings dragged on the object being to show all feathers.

As with turkeys, writes in America, the young hen well as the cocks. In strutting the male is tapping the ground, or bill, and while shaking the side to side, give vent sounds, slow at first and then culminating in a series of rapid sounds, such as—chuu—chuu—chuu—without vocalization.

At the same time the male is drumming and remains one some of an automobile starting up.

At may be thus engaged for hours arduous his charms before a demure little hen, while she persists in looking up at the sky or in nipping at a l. with not so much as a casual glie out of the corner of her eye—(most remarkable example of true masculine patience and perseverance and of genuine heartiness as well.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some popular journal ought to get Senator LaFollette's view on the rate bill as it was finally passed.

The only person who seems to have escaped in the campaign of Senatorial re-election was the chaplain.

The hearse drivers of New York have called a strike. Evidently they must think they are umpiring the dispute.

A fresh supply of ear muffs has been ordered for the press gallery against the next time Senator Bailey arises to a question of personal privilege.

It is announced that Mr. Addicks has abandoned his fight for the Senate. The good news has been delayed a long time, but it is none the less welcome.

In all probability Commissioner Garfield will not be called upon to decline an offer from the Standard Oil Company to run their $20,000 press bureau.

If the Canal Commission can buy American supplies abroad cheaper than at home it is hard to see where the American manufacturer has any kick coming.

Speaker Cannon told Mr. Williams that he counted his house quorum "in blocks of ten." But he neglected to state how many members he counted to the block.

Secretary Metcalf will set down China's claim that she has a coal supply for the whole world for 2,000 as simply another advertising move of the Asiatic Association press bureau.

Canada has just gotten rid of her last imperial garrison which she had to pay for, but she shows no inclination to dispense with the services of the imperial navy which she does not have to pay for. Thrifty people those Kanucks.

Twice within a week Washington has been the scene of a convention that has made tuberculosis the theme of its discussion. The Tuberculosis Congress of course dealt solely with that disease. But the conference of delegates from the state board of health that met here this week also made tuberculosis the primary subject of their discussion. This widespread interest does not mean that the Great White Plague is becoming any more prevalent but it does mean that it is being better understood and now that the physicians know how it may be combated, they think it more worth while to call the attention of the public to it. When the statement of one doctor was taken into consideration, that 10 out of every 100 persons in the United States are destined to sooner or later contract the disease, this solicitude is easily understood. Yet, according to all the statements and there is seldom such unison in medical statements, the disease which is unquestionably the greatest danger that the country has to deal with, is not contagious, though it is infectious and it could be easily controlled if the public were more awake to its real nature. This was the burden of the address made by President Lewis to the Conference of the State Health Officers. He pointed out to them that the results of treatment of consumptives in sanatoria had been very gratifying. But he said that on the principle of an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure, it would be much better, easier and cheaper to prevent consumption than to cure it. Then he pointed out his plan for an educational campaign. He showed just how much the services of a good lecturer would cost, his traveling expenses, the cost of advertising and of postage and clerical work. In fact he talked of the subject as though he were a trained impressario. He said it would cost a state $75,000 to put such a man in the field and keep him there a year. Then he showed that the cost of running even a small consumptive sanatorium was $40,000 a year, and he drew from this the conclusion that five such lecturers could be put into the field and in the course of a year cover any state in the Union. This would be at no greater expense than a sanatorium that would treat at the most not over 200 people. He said that such a course of education would not wipe out consumption but would go a long way toward checking it, for it would show the people how to combat the disease and would prevent thousands of points in every large city from becoming the foci of contagion. The recommendations of Dr. Lewis have at least the ring of common sense to them, and from an economical standpoint ought to commend themselves to every state legislature.

SCARLET TOBACCO PLANT.

Variety Produced by the Crossing of Plants with Red and White Blooms.

The national council of horticulture, through its committee, says of the scarlet tobacco plant: "One of the flower novelties of last year which was successfully grown by many experts is a tobacco plant which produces scarlet flowers, nicotiana Sanderae. It is named for its producer, an expert of England. The plant was originated by crossing two South American tobacco plants, one of which had white and the other red flowers. The result was a flower varying from a light pink to the deepest red. Planted in the foreground of a border of the more familiar nicotiana glauca, which has white, star-shaped flowers of a wonderfully sweet fragrance at twilight, a combination of color most striking is produced.

"A pleasing characteristic of this tobacco plant is the flowering time, which begins at twilight and lasts until the hot rays of the following day wither the blossoms. Thus it is in bloom at the time when it is most appreciated by persons returning home from a weary day's work. The plants are easily grown from seed sown on pulverized soil. Another method is to sow the seed in shallow boxes and transplant, when the fourth or fifth leaf has appeared, to open beds.

"This plant appears to bear flowers all summer long, and with ordinary care should succeed under a great number of conditions. It has been successfully tested in England, Germany and the United States. It has done well in sunlight and partial shade."

Warlike Natives.

In India assaults on British soldiery by natives have become so frequent of late that the press is directing the serious attention of the government to the matter. The Civil and Military Gazette asserts, "on trustworthy information, that in the northern command alone such assaults occur as often as once a week, with a marked tendency to increase." This is regarded as an aftermath of the triumph of the Japanese in the far east.

WINNING A LOLO BRIDE.

Custom in Western China That Calls for Courage in the Man.

It is customary among the Lolo of western China for the bride on the wedding morning to perch herself on the highest branch of a large tree, while the other female members of her family cluster on the lower limbs, armed with sticks.

When all are duly stationed the bridegroom clambers up the tree, assailed on all sides by blows, pushes and punches from the dowagers, and it is not until he has broken through their fence and captured the bride that he is allowed to carry her off.

Similar difficulties assail the bridegroom among the Mongolian Koraks, who are in the habit of celebrating their marriages in large tents, divided into numerous separate but communicating apartments.

At a given signal as soon as the guests are assembled the bride starts off through the compartments, followed by her wooer, while the women of the encampment throw every possible impediment in his way, tripping up his unwary feet, holding down the curtains to prevent his passage and applying willow and alder switches unmercifully as he stoops to raise them.

As with the maiden on the treetop, the Korak bride is invariably captured, however much the possibilities of escape may be in her favor.

"These swamps abound in scorpions, rattlesnakes, vipers, lizards, cottonmouths and the negroes affrightedly add, chalkfaced spooks; but those are not the depressing features.

"It is the hundreds of tenantless old mansions you are constantly encountering. These vacant homes are models of antebellum magnificence. There are large columns and wide verandas in front, spacious hallways and rooms of lordly proportions. Some of the carvings are almost of royal splendor.

Why is it, a useless seven year old kid can drop a nail turned match in an alley and burn up all the barns in a block, while an able bodied man has to use up a whole box of matches to get a wood fire started in a heater that has draft enough to draw all the furniture up the stove pipe?

We have residing in the southern part of our town, a young man who, if reports are true, is wonderfully and fearfully made. His doctor said he had an iron constitution; his friends said he had nerves of steel; his uncle, that he had a wooden head; the girls said he had a heart of stone; his enemies declared there was more brass to him than anything else; others declared he had lots of sand, while his admirers said he was all wool and a yard wide.

The Class Day exercises of the class of '06 were held at the school house on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. The room was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flowers, ferns and the class colors, lavender and white. A large flag of black and gold, the colors of the class of '07, and a lyre of blue and white, the colors of the class of '08 were among the decorations. A fine program consisting of music, songs and speeches was given and much appreciated by a large and enthusiastic audience. Helen Johnson greeted the audience with a few salutatory remarks and Cora Hooper gave the history of the class. Laura Cannon was the poet of the day and recited an original poem which good naturedly hit each and every one of her class mates. Bertha James acted as class prophet, and Deedie Tiffany gave some very good advice to the lower classes. Herman Cabbon with a few well chosen remarks handed down the sword to the class of '07. The eighth grade received their diplomas and altogether the afternoon was spent as a fitting close to the school year.

The Ladies Aid society will hold its next regular meeting in the basement of the church on Wednesday afternoon, June 6. Everybody cordially invited. Mrs. L. M. Cribb, president.

Some newspaper men are terrible liars. In writing of a cyclone out west one of them said, it turned a well inside out, a cellar upside down, moved a township line, blew the staves out of a whiskey barrel and left nothing but a bung hole, changed the day of the week, blew a mortgage off a farm, blew all the cricks out of a fence and knocked the wind out of a politician.

They have lived in the vicinity of Grayslake for forty-seven years and Mr. Wood states that if himself and Mrs. Wood are alive and physically able they will celebrate their sixty-second wedding anniversary by attending the celebration in Grayslake, July 4, 1906.

BOYS MADE SLAVES

Little Italian Boys in Kenosha Work as Slaves for Contractor

ONE BOY HELD 30 DAYS

More Than a Hundred Have Secured Permits to Work and Their Wages go to the Contractor

A quiet investigation is being conducted of the conditions surrounding the employment of more than a hundred Italian boys in Kenosha and the results of these investigations may be sensational. It is openly declared by men who are in position to know that the padrone system of employing these boys is being worked extensively in Kenosha and the condition of these boys is little better than the condition of a slave. The boys have been bought and sold as chattels and have been shipped to this country to take up a life of labor in order that the men in Italy who gather them together may reap a fortune from their labor. The officers of the county, while admitting that there are grave fears as to the facts in the case, decline to discuss the employment of these boys as they claim that they have not at this time the evidence needed to prove that the laws are being violated.

An examination of the records of the county judge shows that in the past twelve months more than 170 boys have come from Italy and secured permits to work in Kenosha factories. In most cases permits have been issued to these boys because of the fact that they were practically homeless and the judge was unwilling to throw them out on the streets. An examination shows that these boys are being brought into Kenosha at the rate of from 15 to 20 a week. In most cases the boys are under 16 years of age and they have no friends in Kenosha save the man to whom they are ticketed by the steamship companies.

Only a few days ago the government started an investigation of these boys being brought to Kenosha and one of them was held at Ellis Island in New York for nearly a month. At the end of this period a man from Kenosha, who alleged that he was the boy's father, managed to secure his release and the boy came on to Kenosha. The following day he applied for a permit and was put to work in a Kenosha factory. In most cases the boys have no means to show that they are old enough to go to work. The padrone in Kenosha, who carefully looks to the employment of the boys and who is suspected of taking full charge of the wages paid to them, always aids in getting the papers. The boys appear before the judge and when asked for their passports they always state that these papers were lost either in New York or Chicago. As the boys are homeless the court has practically no alternative save to issue the certificate permitting them to begin their career as factory workers. It is claimed that these boys are forced to endure all sorts of hardships and that the smallest wages won by them are paid over to the American agents of the Italians who have employed them as their slaves. Thousands of dollars are sent monthly to Italy as a result of the work of these boys.

Judge Sloan has given this matter a great deal of consideration but he has found no remedy and it is thought that in the near future the matter will be laid before the state legislature in order to secure the passing of a law which will demand that these boys have some sort of an education, either Italian or American, before they are granted permits to go to work in the factories.

AS EFFECTIVE AS RAPIER

Umbrella Capable of Inflicting Painful Injuries and Has Been Cause of Death.

A year ago a duel with umbrellas was fought in Paris outside the Gaité-Montparnasse in the Rue de la Gaité between Gaston de Faux and Hugues Lebon. The quarrel began in the neighboring concert hall, and would have been settled, as the French say, "at another time and in another manner," had not the contestants been armed with steel-rod umbrellas, which they proceeded to manipulate in the fashion of rapiers, with the result that M. Lebon was conveyed to the hospital minus several front teeth and with a torn ear, while his opponent crept home nursing a punctured cheek.

A more fatal umbrella duel has just furnished a sensational case for the criminal court of Liege. Dr. Sury of Spa, in a fit of anger, insulted Dr. Delhaise of Liege while the latter was peacefully reading a paper in a cafe. Enraged by Delhaise's calmness, Dr. Sury threatened him with his umbrella. Delhaise, while attempting to rise, parried the blow with his own umbrella, whereupon Dr. Sury lunged forward and the steel rod of his umbrella entered his opponent's head through the eye to a depth of three inches. Dr. Delhaise died subsequently. The court condemned Dr. Sury to 18 months in prison and to pay $20,000 damages to the widow of the deceased.

WAITING MAIDS OF JAPAN.

Barefooted Damsels Serve the Courses During Progress of a Formal Dinner.

Unless there are ladies among the guests, the wife and daughters of the host do not appear at dinner in Japan. Before the meal begins it is customary for them to bring in small cups of tea and dainty confectionery, when they take their survey of the party. If gentlemen only are present, the Japanese hostess disappears after the greeting is over, and does not return until the guests are taking their departure. At a signal from the host, barefooted waiting maids, dressed in graceful and prettily-tinted kimono, bring in lacquer trays bearing tiny covered bowls. Before setting the trays on the tables the maids sink gracefully to their knees and bend forward till their foreheads touch the floor. Then they serve dinner, which is of several courses.—Smith's Weekly.

OUR MODERN GARDEN TOOLS

Up-to-Date Implements Perform Wonderful in the Saving of Labor.

We sympathize with our grandparents who have gardens in little two by four tacked up beds, with walks between them, and the whole arrangements so planned that all the work was done with spade, hoe and rake, says the Northwestern Agriculturist. No one thought of using a plow or harrow in these gardens. The beds were spaded into heaps and then worked into shape with a rake. The seeds were sown from a board which served the double purpose of guide in making the rows and firming the soil. The gardener worked in a humped-up, strained position while he sowed, hoed and pulled weeds, doing everything by hand. "Garden sass" in those days was a luxury which represented real labor.

The twentieth century gardener, like other modern tillers of the soil, works his head as well as his hands. Beds are made in the open, where the horses can be used to prepare the soil for planting with plow, harrow, rolls, etc. The sowing of the seeds is done with garden drills which do the planting as rapidly as the operator can walk. The rows are long and straight with room between to use a one-horse cultivator in lieu of the hoe. The finishing touches are given with the attachments of knives, rakes and levelers that make up the combined garden drill and cultivator. This implement is simple and inexpensive, but a wonderful labor saver. One man with it will do the work of ten without it.

Civilization shortens the life of a horse. In a wild state he lives to be 36 or 40 years old, while the domestic horse is old at 25 years.

BET SUGAR IN ENGLAND.

Experiments in Essex Last Year Showed That Beets of Best Quality Could Be Grown.

In nearly every county in England, Wales and southern Ireland it has been demonstrated that beets of high sugar content can be grown. It has, however, yet to be satisfactorily shown that sugar can be commercially and profitably manufactured from these beets. The failure of an attempt at sugar production in England some 30 years ago would seem to answer this in the negative. But it appears that beets used at that failure contained only ten per cent. of sugar, and that farmers found it more profitable to feed them to their stock than to sell at the price the factory could afford to pay. In the present Essex experiments, however, the average percentage of sugar in the beets is placed at 16%, and even this has been exceeded in several recorded cases in other counties. This striking improvement in quality has been produced by careful selection and by close attention to other details of culture.

The experiments in Essex last year showed that beets could be grown equal to and in some cases better in quality than those raised in sugar producing countries. While this is the first thing to be investigated, the committee says "it does not follow that even when this is established beyond any possibility of doubt the undertaking is one that would necessarily be a commercial success. The business side of the question—the cost of production, the cost of working a factory and a host of similar points—needs careful and experienced consideration."

Figures are given showing that the cost per acre in these experiments was about 16 per cent. more than in similar experiments in the United States.

Located by Chickens.

In Mexico a gold mine has just been sold for $150,000, for the discovery of which chickens are entitled to full credit. A few months ago the value of the property was unsuspected, but one day the employee of Albert Falos, a merchant, of Tapalpa, found grains of gold in the crops of his fowls and immediately took steps to acquire the land where the birds roamed.

GRIZZLY UGLY CUSTOMER.

The One Who Wounds Him Would Be Wise to Climb a Tall Tree.

A wounded grizzly is a mean thing to fight, and if there is a tree handy it is a pretty good thing to climb if anything gets wrong with your shooting iron. I do not think a grizzly will climb a tree, though brown and black bears will. Any bear is pretty sure to fight if crippled, but I know there is this difference between a black or brown bear and a grizzly, says Charles A. Sartain, in Field and Stream. If you meet a black bear unexpectedly, give him five seconds and he will be out of sight; but meet a grizzly the same way and give him five seconds and you will be out of business.

About the most fascinating way to hunt bear, which is even better than night work, is to trail him right to his home, and meet him in broad daylight on his own doorstep, as it were. It can be done, but everything must be just right. The ground might be covered with a light fall of snow and the snow ought to be melting. Then the twigs won't break. One has to be very careful, and when bruin is found, which is generally at the foot of a large tree, one must never forget that instead of one there may be two, and, in that case, one must be able to shoot fast and straight, and implicit confidence in the gun he carries is about the best stock-in-trade a man can possess. About the surest place to shoot a bear to stop him quickly to my way of thinking, is directly in the brain. It is really not a hard shot, usually at short range, and it puts him out mighty quick.

UNITED STATES AMERICANIZED

Chinese in This Country Substitute
Greenbacks for Brass in Burial Ceremony.

Unconverted Chinese who have lived in America long enough to be touched by the modernizing influence of the new west, have given a peculiar twist to their already peculiar burial service. It was according to this modernized rite, reports the Philadelphia Record, that many crisp United States dollar bills were buried, together with food, in the coffin of Chin Ying, whose funeral took place on a recent Sunday in this city. The original Chinese ceremony calls for much burning of incense in the room where the body lies in state and at the burial that food and "cash" be interred with the corpse. The "cash," or Chinese money is to pay the guide who shows the departed soul across the Confucian Styx, and the food prevents him from fainting along the way from hunger. But the American-Chinese is no longer particular that Chinese money accompanies the spirit. He reasons that American dollars are as good, and certainly more easily obtained here and that the wanderer can surely find a bank of exchange in the land of spirits where he can convert the sound money of one of the most prosperous nations on earth into any currency the other world requires.

Queer Swiss Miser.

An extraordinary miser was "Father" Asby, who died the other day in Berno, Switzerland. He has been referred to by newspaper correspondents as "the most miserably miser in all Europe." Since he was 20 years of age, when he inherited a large fortune, he had lived on charity and an expenditure of three cents a day. He died at the age of 70 and his body was so emaciated that it resembled a mummy. He left securities valued at $750,000, $100,000 in gold and silver coin concealed about his house and no relatives.

Rapacious Vultures.

Hungry vultures have attacked men and women in the Valley of Coucha, canton of Valais; a bull was seriously injured in a fight with them that he had to be killed.

KANSAN AWAY FROM HOME.

It Is Not Long Before He Begins to Yearn for His Old Habitation.

Occasionally a good man grows dissatisfied with Kansas. The milk is too yellow or the honey too sweet and he doesn't like them to flow over his land anyway, says the Seneen Tribune. So he parts with his farm, sells his livestock and "other things too numerous to mention" and moves to Oklahoma. There he takes his good Kansas money and buys a farm which to-day is and tomorrow is not, because the wind has blown it away. Or he tries Colorado and slushes around in the mud irrigating a strip of bottom so narrow that a cow can't jump into the field because she jumps over it.

Then he hears of Texas and goes down to hunt the bag of gold at the rainbow. In the daytime he scratches sandhurs out of his flesh and at night centipedes crawl over his face. When his money is all gone he begins to feel like he did the first night he ever stayed away from home.

He yearns for good old Kansas and the yearn sticks in his throat and chokes him until tears come in his eyes. He would give a month's work to see the cows standing at the bars on his old Kansas farm and hear the horn blow for supper.

Memory is a marvelous painter and paints best the things we love best. It pictures to the traveler the corn silking in the field he once owned, the wheat yellowing for the harvest, the clover stretching away in a carpet of red and green, richer than the rugs of Persians. It shows him the elms as they whispered to his children at play beneath them, points to the roses in the corner of the old rail fence, and in infinite detail paints a thousand things that touches the heart and proves its whimsical power.

Happy is the man who wakes from sleep to find that he has wandered from Kansas into his dreams.

NEWS ITEMS OF 168 B. C.

Picked Up by the Reporters of a Roman Journal of That Time.

The oldest paper in the world known is the Acta Populi Romani Diurna, of which there is still one number extant of the year 168 B. C. of which the following is a translation:

On the 29th of March: Consul Livinius has exercised the governing power to-day.

A violent storm occurred in the course of this day; the lightning struck an oak, soon after noon, near the Vellian hill, and split it into several pieces.

A disturbance took place at an inn with the sign of a Bear, close to the Janiculum. The landlord has been seriously wounded.

The Edile Titinus has condemned some retail butchers for selling meat to the people which had not been inspected by the authorities. The fines have been devoted to the erection of a chapel to the goddess.

The money changer, Ausidius, whose office bears the sign of the Cimbrian shield, absconded with a considerable sum. He was pursued and has been arrested. He still had on him all the stolen money. The Praetor Pontejus sentenced him to restore that money immediately to those by whom he had been entrusted with it.

The brigand chief, Dennipho, who was arrested by the Legate Nerva, was crucified to-day.

The Carthaginian squadron has entered Ostia harbor to-day.

REMNANTS OF GALILEO.

Finger and Thumb of the Famous Astronomer to Be Bought by Italian Government.

What is the finger of a dead scientist worth? This question has been stirring all Florence, the thumb and index finger of the right hand of Galileo having recently been offered for sale in that city by an old woman, Laura Jonti. Being in straitened circumstances, relates the New York Post, she tried to obtain the highest offer for her strange property.

The government, getting wind of the affair, caused an investigation to be made, and ascertained that these relics of the great astronomer were genuine, having been cut off in 1737 by a fanatical admirer, Marquis Cappeloni, when the body was reinterred in the splendid mausoleum in the Santa Croce church. Thereupon the government decided to acquire them and to replace them in the mausoleum.

The only question still to be discussed is the matter of price. Upon this point experts will undoubtedly be called in. But one person, we are sure, would not be welcome—the American tourist, who, as reported recently in the Atlantic Monthly, remarked on being told that of Galileo's tomb in the Santa Croce: "Galileo? Oh, yes; Galileo? Why, of course! Pygmalion and Galileo; you always hear of them together; now, who was Pygmalion?"

Dexterous Africans.

For a feat of dexterity and nerve it would be difficult to surpass that of the Boesjesman, of South Africa, who walks quietly up to a puff adder and deliberately sets his bare foot on its back. Killing the snake, he eats the body and uses the poison for his arrows.

Women as Well as Men

Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

SEE SERMONS IN STONES.

Scientists Testify to Mutual Sympathy Existing Between Jewels and Persons.

Science has come to the fore to testify that the belief that precious stones have a peculiar sympathy with human character and bearing thereon is no idle superstition. A professor of the Paris conservatory of Arts and Crafts says that the mutual attraction of people and stones is beyond dispute. He throws cold water on the belief that sapphires can open prison doors or that diamonds make brave men invulnerable. But after three years' experimental observation he maintains that a preference for certain jewels indicates certain temperamental qualities and even characteristic of physiognomy.

For instance, the ruby invariably attracts persons of dark eyes with long eyelashes. The diamond tempts the blue eyed who boast long lashes. And both blonde and brunette alike if of a nervous temperament yearn for emeralds.

Easy-going natures fall under the spell of blue stones. But more than all these scientific facts is the discovery that the sympathy of the stone is a sure test of its genuineness. No matter how perfect artificial stones may be, even though made from the dust of the real, having undergone an unnatural crystallization they do not possess the subtle sympathetic attraction. When an easy-going woman turns the cold shoulder on a turquoise collar you may be positive that the turquoise is artificial.

PATCH UP OLD SCHOONERS

Artisans Repair with Great Skill
Chicago's Time-worn Lake Craft.

Hearts of oak in the Chicago schooner fleet are breaking. Beam and stanchion, rail and brace, the picturesque lumber carrier of other days, is going down before the attacks of time. Wind and wave are winning victories which send the stout ships of the old-time fleet with greater and greater frequency to the shipyard, and boats which once boasted of records made in runs from Chicago to Michigan lumber ports and back are yearly surrendering to the fire of competition and seeking their last port in humanity, says the Chicago Daily News.

There still remain active, however, 50 of the thousands of boats which once crowded Chicago harbor and furnished business for a hundred tugs. Their masters, grown gray in fighting battles with gales and ice noses, still cling to the ships they love. Affectionately do some of their owners regard the old-time craft, and many tricks of shipcraft are resorted to that some of the boats may be kept in service.

Water and dirt, heat and cold, combine their forces in attacks on the old ships. Here and there weaknesses develop. Pieces of oak falter and crack and dry rot does deadly work. Then comes a call for an army of chisels and hammers rip and saw and pieces are taken out and replaced by new timbers. The work goes on the secretions of No. 10 reach a vitrow will soon and torn, she is of milking-bee of her canvas, and ice.

VINEYARDS IN PORTUGAL.

Grape Growers in Bad Way Over Inability to Dispose of Stored
Up Crops.

The distress among the agricultural laborers is taxing, in many parts of Portugal, the resources of the local authorities, especially in the wine districts of the north, where the crisis seems to be the most acute. So keen appears to be the distress that the subject has been laid before the parliament.

According to the local press in these districts, whose products in prosperous times are a chief source of the country's wealth, many of the vineyard owners have in their cellars the harvest of two years' grape growth which they are unable to sell, except at a huge sacrifice, and not being able to obtain for the cash on which they counted for help from bankers and others to tide over bad times, they have resolved this year to discontinue in many vineyards the hoeing and indispensable labor. This has led to non-employment of some thousands of hands who could otherwise have counted upon employment.

Hunger and misery, it is said, are seen everywhere, and the poor starving wretches are spreading themselves over the country, to the detriment of others of the working class whose lot is but little better, and resorting to pilfering and begging to satisfy their needs. Instances are said by the press to have occurred where some men who were considered well to do yeomen have solved for themselves the question of financial difficulties by resorting to suicide.

Some few years ago a regular fever of vineyard making spread over the northern half of the country and over-production has been the result, which water Portuguese heads foresaw and avoided, but their warnings were not heeded.

Unfinished.

An impressionist painter was visited recently by a Cleveland millionaire. The latter poses as quite an authority on art. He had been advised to secure a piece of unusually bright and pleasing color which the artist regarded as his masterpiece. "Um," said the visitor, "very pretty little sketch indeed. Not at all bad. Look here; when you finish it send it up for me on approval if you want to."

Trees for Kansas.

Approximately 1,000,000 young trees will be distributed to the people living on the prairies of western Kansas free of charge this year. H. S. Reaue, state forestry commissioner, says he is afraid that even this number will not be sufficient to supply the demand. The forestry stations at Dodge City and Ogallah have the young trees and will almost ready for shipment and will begin sending them out to those who have made application within a few days.—Topeka Capital.

Portugal's Population.

Vice Consul Kincaid furnishes from Lisbon the census figures of Portugal taken in December, 1900, and just published. The population was 5,016,287, including the Azores. The percentage of illiteracy was 71 per cent. for the males and 85 per cent. for the females. The government, however, is bestirring itself on the educational question. The foreign residents in Portugal numbered 39,844, of whom 60 were Americans.
